Husband Of Princeton Woman Found Hanging In Lyon County Jail

Freeman Henry, 50, who faced a murder charge in the pistol slaying of his former wife, Mrs. Pauline Henry, hanged himself from the door of his cell in Lyon county jail early Sunday morning, April 27.

Henry, father of Mrs. Dorothy Jean Matthews, Princeton, used his leather belt to hang himself. He also had slashed his wrists with a razor blade.

The 50-year-old floorscraper worker was scheduled to face an examining trial Monday, April 28, in the slaying of his former wife a week before, Monday, April 21.

A fellow prisoner found Henry's body when the accused slayer's wife, Mrs. Mae Henry, of Princeton, came to see him. The other prisoner looked through a hole in his cell door and saw the body. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide by hanging.

Officers took four notes from Henry during his six-day stay in jail. One told of his intention to kill his former wife and himself and his request that he be buried beside her if it were agreeable to his children. Another note specified the clothes in which he wanted to be buried.

Funeral services for Henry were conducted at 2 p. m. Monday, April 21, at Dunn Funeral Chapel by the Rev. L. J. Knoth. Burial was in Kuttawa cemetery.

Survivors include the wife, Mrs. Mae Henry, Princeton; two daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Matthews, Princeton, and Mrs. Juanita Brown, Detroit; a son, Bobby Joe Henry; his mother, Mrs. Sally Hackler, Dycusburg, and a sister, Mrs. George Gass, Nortonville.

Mrs. Gale McCarty and son, Michael Wayne, were the weekend guests of Mrs. McCarty's grandmother, Mrs. W. C. Reames, Paducah.

Airmar Third Class Billy Joe Gresham arrived Tuesday from Cheyenne, Wyoming, to spend a leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Billie T. Gresham, Hopkinsville street, before reporting May 10 at Savannah, Georgia.

Victory For Free Press

Assaults upon a free press have grown so numerous in America in recent years, and so widespread and from so many quarters, that there is serious reason for concern lest this basic right of free men be so seriously impaired as to imperil liberty itself.

Now and then, though, the principle of a free press is vindicated by individuals or upheld by a court, the Lake Charles, Louisiana, decision of Judge Bernard Cocke being a brilliant case in point. It took Judge Cocke two and a half hours to read his 181 pages of decisions in the case of five Louisiana newspapermen accused of defaming sixteen public officials and three gamblers, but a fine blow for a basic American freedom was struck by the Louisiana jurist.

The indictment of the newsmen came from criticism they printed in connection with a gambling scandal which gripped Calcasieu parish in Louisiana. THE LAKE CHARLES AMERICAN PRESS attacked the racket with singular courage and with effectiveness, pointing to an obvious tieup between big gambling and public officialdom which had brought Calcasieu parish to a situation in which gambling dominated the community. This is not a novel situation, but is present in some towns in Kentucky, if you want to bring the subject closer to home, and the blight in Herderson county, if you want a specific instance, is as corroding to community life as it is in Calcasieu parish (county) in Louisiana.

In these straightforward terms Judge Bernard Cocke summarized the issue at Lake Charles:

Any citizen or newspaper has the right to criticize the public acts of officials. Without that right, we would have a dictatorial form of government and the discussion of important public issues would be only such as might be permitted by those holding authority.

The press has its own particular function in this great republic of ours, a function so fundamental that patriots shudder when presidents make irresponsible statements about their power to seize press and radio.

Judge Cocke, of New Orleans has struck a blow for a fundamental American liberty in his Lake Charles decision. It comes at an opportune time, when freedom of the press is under fire around the world, and in our own land.

Smarting Under A "Slight"

The Mayfield Messenger and some 120 other state newspapers and radio stations are smarting under a "slight" at the formal dedication of the Kenlake hotel at Kentucky Lake last Saturday night. They put the blame squarely on the shoulders of Henry Ward, Conservation Commissioner for Kentucky and a Paducah newspaperman.

"Stupid" was the reaction of insiders and outsiders when they learned of the discrimination.

Sitting right in the front yard, or the back yard, of Kentucky Lake, besides the Mayfield Messenger, are the Murray Ledger and Times and the Murray Democrat, The Fulton Daily Leader, The Hickman County Gazette, The Hickman Courier, The Benton Tribune Democrat and the Marshall Courier, The Ballard Yeoman of Wickliffe, The Smithland Enterprise, the Carlisle News at Bardwell, The Princeton Leader and at least five radio stations. None of them were asked to have any part in the Ward party.

The Paducah Sun-Democrat and its affiliate radio stations were invited and present, and the Fulton Weekly News was invited and represented. I went along as a guest of a Mayfieldian who had tickets, not as a representative of the newspaper.

In addition some 105 other newspapers and radio stations in the state were not invited and not represented.

For an amateur in publicity to have made such an error could easily have been excused. For an old newspaperman who should know the full value of the press and radio the "slight" is inexcusable.

Mr. Ward said that he "just" picked around at random for the papers and radios he thought would give the hotel and the lake the most publicity.

Mr. Ward should have asked all the newspapers and radio stations or none. There was not room enough to accommodate all of them if they accepted but the chances are less than one third would have accepted. They would have been very grateful for the invitation, however, and not felt that they had been overlooked.

Every morning our desk is filled with publicity about Kentucky. We publish nearly all of it. So do the other newspapers. Suppose we should let Mr. Ward choose the papers that should publish the publicity and he should limit them to twenty-five.

We remember quite well when Mr. Ward was waging a terrific battle against this administration which now praises him so highly. Graves county ever gave him a majority when he ran for lieutenant-governor.

We also recall a headline in the Mayfield Messenger last November: It said "Graves County gives Democrats Biggest Majority of Any County in State."

Governor Wetherby was in Florida while Henry and his publicity chief Mack Sisk were rigging up the party. He knew nothing about it and I do not believe he would have slighted any newspaper or radio station in the state. He seemed very put out about it at the dinner at Kenlake Hotel Saturday night. Sisk, also a newspaperman whom we thought would have known better, said that leaving the Messenger off the list was due to an error in proof reading. Well, we know about errors in newspapers but did Ward and Sisk make the same errors on the other hundred or more newspapers and radios they did not ask? We don't believe they did.

Chin Up, Candidates

Note to Presidential candidates: If the going gets tough, men, keep your chins up—the prize has been enhanced. The pay, to be sure, is the same as Harry's. But the, uh, working conditions have been improved.

For, at a cost of nearly $6 million, American taxpayers have just finished brightening up the inside and outside of the Presidential mansion. It's enough to make any man want to call it home.

Here are some of the prizes the lucky winner of the November sweepstakes can expect:

A five-story mansion of 107 rooms, 19 baths, and 12 lavatories with a telephone and a push button to summon the servants in every room of the living quarters.

An air-conditioning system to permit separate temperatures in each room.

A movie theater, a swimming pool, a broadcasting room and a fourth-floor solarium.

An all-electric kitchen equipped to serve a formal dinner for 100 or refreshments for 1000 guests.

An atomic bomb shelter.

Only two common household furnishings are missing from the restored White House, venetian blinds and wallpaper. Blinds are not used because they would not be in keeping with the Georgian architecture. Instead, all the windows have white silk glass curtains. And all the walls are painted except in the Green, Blue and Red Rooms. These have walls covered in damask and satin.

And so, candidates, that's why we say—

Tired of campaigning?

Fed up with fence-mending?

Harried from handshaking?

The new, improved, bigger and better White House is waiting. And, just remember, the lucky man who actually makes it to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue can call any one of 72 staff members to bring him his slippers and the evening paper.

Little Chips

By J. S. H.

G. Homer Brown sent me an item by one Kentucky columnist which correctly diagnoses a chronic trouble most of us have at this time of the year. It is "fishitis," an unusual disease known by the following symptoms:

"Continual complaint as to need for fresh air, sunshine and relaxation. Patient has blank expression, sometimes deaf to wife and kids. Has no taste for work of any kind. Frequently checks tackle catalogs. Hangs out in sporting goods stores longer than usual. Secret night phone calls to fishing pals. Mumbles to self, 'Lies to everyone.'"

Kentucky Folklore

"The Singer Weeps"

By Gordon Wilson, Ph. D. (Western State College)

Often when I have listened to a folk singer, the genuine sort rather than a theatrical cheat, I have noticed how he has had difficulty in getting by some of the pathetic passages without genuine emotional feeling, almost to the point of tears.

One of the best singers told me that he actually felt weak after singing "The Death of Queen Jane" or "Barbara Allen." So did I, and I told him so, for his singing brought back the emotions of the folk groups that I knew so well when I was a boy.

Those who look upon folk literature, oral or written, as something cheap or emotional are doing violence to one of the finest things in our nature. Of course, the singer wants to weep at the tragic events of his serious song; so do those who listen understandingly.

I recall how a cultured lady who sat by me at one of the meetings of the Kentucky Folklore Society cried unashamed as a Negro quartet sang feelingly "Steal Away to Jesus" and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." She said it brought back all the emotions of her childhood, spent in the Delta Country where the music that she knew was always colored by the rich, melodious voices of the Negro workers in the cotton patches.

Those who listen to folk music as rendered by a good singer and do not feel a surge of emotion have progressed too far from folk life to be reached by even the best art. I have known "Foggy, Foggy Dew" a great many years and have loved its strange and tragic story; but it failed to reach me at my best until I heard it sung recently by a young woman who grew up in the mountains of Tennessee and sings folk songs beautifully and expressively. The whole tragic feeling of the simple ballad broke on me, and I must have looked like a queer old man to youngsters seated near me as I had to reach for my handkerchief. After all, the same tragedy as told in the few stanzas of folk in an extended novel or even a short story would bring many a tear, in the silence of one's own room as he read of the old yet ever-new sorrow of one who loved not wisely but too well.

Bradley Kincaid's saying that

The treatment formula could not possibly be beat. It is: "Medication is useless. Disease is not fatal. Victim should go fishing as often as possible."

"Fishitis" is not all bad, however. It can relieve the pressure of the grocery fund if the patient has any luck in wearing off the disease. Jim Catlett and Dawson Nichols recently came back from Pisgah-Bay, VFW fishing outpost, with 23 crappies weighing 23 pounds. The Bob Parsleys Franklin street, did better with a catch of 35 in about three hours at the lake. The luckiest of all were four boys, Jay Sheehan, Billy Berkley and Jimmy and Tommy Cotton, who caught 125 fish at Mrs. Dique Satterfield's pond.

One old man of my acquaintance, the one who built the haunted house, certainly deserved to be remembered in some simple ballad that would tell how he remained faithful to the girl who ran away and married his rival after he had built for her the best house within miles of Fidelity, and how he lived to old age true to the memory of the girl who was to have been the mistress of the house that stood unoccupied for half a century.

I once told the story, in my rather poor way, and was astonished to see a woman weeping in the audience. She came to me afterwards and said that the man who built the haunted house was her uncle and that she had never known all the story I told, a story that I had verified only a short time before by interviewing some of the close relatives of the old man shortly after he had died in the haunted house, where he had lived for a few years in his old age. In other times, before we trusted so much to written records, some minstrel of Fidelity or near by would have turned Old Man Joe into a folk character that would have taken a place by the side of Lord Randall or Earl Brand or Hind Elin.

Folk songs, we must not forget, were records of life, often made just after the events of the ballads had taken place and full of the local reference that would make them genuine. By oral transmission they have lost some of this localism that makes them seem authentic records, but as sung by good folk artists they reassemble their actuality and move the singer and the listener alike because of their old, old story of tragic human lives. Of course, the singer often wants to cry; let him do so; and, if you are not too sophisticated, you will unconsciously join him.

So we've come around to another Kentucky Derby—the 78th—and the Bluegrass State comes into its own again. Once more, for the better part of a week, Kentucky is the sports center of the world, and a focal point for social life. And a beehive of gamblers.

Have you ever wondered what makes the Kentucky Derby so different from other horse races? Superficially they are all the same. All a race amounts to, in essence, is a bunch of horses try to beat each other around an oval—and usually one comes in first. But that isn't the Kentucky Derby. The race itself only takes a few seconds more than two minutes. Whirlaway holds the track record of a fraction of a second more than two minutes and one second.

Why do people come from South America, Mexico, Canada, even from England, France and other far corners of the world to see the Derby?

Why will 30 or more special trains from places hundreds of miles away from Kentucky descend on Louisville over the weekend of the first Saturday in May? There are a lot of things that go into the making of the Derby.

For one thing, it is a social event. People go to race tracks to gamble, and horse race betting simply isn't real respectable—and is generally frowned on.

However, if you make a social event of it, and a lot of Our Best People do it—then it not only assumes a cloak of respectability, but it becomes The Thing To Do.

Then, the Derby comes at a time when Spring is beginning to burst out all over, and people have the vague stirrings which are associated with Spring. They want to get away from familiar surroundings and do something different. They want to forget the cold and grim winter. The Derby is people, a spring holiday, it is surrounded with "Southern tradition", whatever that is, like a mummy is swathed in wrappings. It's a chance to entertain friends in sparkling fashion. It's a state of mind. And it's a financial bonanza to the whole state.

So, happy day! It's Derbytime.

RUNNING WATER?

on the farm it's WORKING water!

Working water means added income from your stock without increasing their numbers. Working water ups yields from dairy cows 10 to 25 per cent, can increase egg production as much as 20 per cent, increases weight on beef cattle, hogs, lambs, gets them to market sooner, and for less feed.

Working water relieves you of those hundreds of hours you spend each year driving stock to water—or lugging water to the stock. Working water speeds your washing and scrubbing chores.

Working water means less work for you. And it means less work for your wife, too.

No more pumping . . . no more hauling . . . plenty of water for dishes, laundry, cooking, cleaning, and for baths and showers.

Working water is the foundation of a successful farm, of a convenient, healthy, modern, attractive home.

MAY is National Water Systems Month. Dealers everywhere will demonstrate the value of working water on your farm. Let your dealer show you how a water system can work for you. It will be well worth your time.

Working for a Better Kentucky Through Better Agriculture

THE GARDEN

John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

TOMATOES are a fruit crop, and need phosphorus in their feeding. The general garden fertilizer suggestions in this column are for vegetables, not for fruit crops. Garden setting time is after all danger of frost is past, but one must rush the season a week or so covering with any one of the several plant protectors now on market. Glass jars or tin cans are not suitable; in fact, they've done themselves worse than no covering at all, sometimes.

Tomatoes always have suffered from several minor diseases which killed the plants, leaf by leaf, but now is added the hazard of the late blight that caused such disappointment in 1950. There is no telling, of course, but having come once, it may come again.

Some late blight was seen in 1945, and tests were got underway at the Experiment Station of all the control materials known. The findings follow:

The "coppers" that control late blight (the "bad" kind) and that measurably stop the other tomato diseases are: Copper-A, C-O-C-S and Basic Copper Sulphate (with "sticker" added). Other acceptable spray materials are Dithane Z-78 and Parzate.

Only "wet" spraying was found dependable. Only in that way is there assurance of protection against blight germs that being wind-borne, may alight anywhere. Spreading the plants' spacing helps to speed their drying, as wet leaf tissue invites the blight.

For unstaked tomatoes, the rows should be no closer than five feet and the plants no closer than four feet in the row. Plants trained on stakes should have four feet between rows, and in the rows should stand no closer than 30 inches; three feet is better.

Because there is so generally the threat of the wilt disease, especially in old gardens, only the resistant varieties are safe to use. These are: early, Break O'Day and Valiant; midseason, Pritchard; main crop and earliness, Marglobe and Rutgers. The "hybrids," though excellent in so many respects, have been known to succumb in wilt-infected soil.

Tobacco Diseases Spread If Growers Become Careless

"Tobacco Diseases," a recent bulletin of the University of Kentucky Experiment Station, says use of natural leaf tobacco while working in plant beds may spread disease.

"It has been clearly demonstrated," it is stated, "that cured tobacco is the source of most of the mosaic infection of tobacco plants before and during transplanting. Therefore do not use natural leaf for either chewing or smoking and do not carry it or otherwise handle it while working around the plant bed."

If natural leaf has been handled recently, workers are advised to scrub their hands before handling plants in the bed. If natural leaf has been carried in the pockets, brush them out.

Commercial plug, twist and scrap chewing tobacco usually are free from mosaic and are safer to use than natural leaf, the bulletin brings out. Pipe smokers should use canned tobacco rather than natural leaf, and manufactured cigarettes probably are free from disease.

"It is preferable, however," the bulletin continues, "to use no tobacco whatever when working in the plant bed. Growers who wish to chew or smoke natural leaf during the plant-bed and setting seasons should grow a mosaic-resistant variety of tobacco for the whole crop or at least enough to make up a supply of mosaic-free chewing tobacco."

A concentrated solution of trisodium phosphate destroys mosaic on the hands. If a bucket of solution is kept at the bed during weeding and pulling and the hands are dipped in it occasionally, mosaic can be largely prevented, it is stated, even when workers use natural leaf.

Some scientists think of the world as three peninsulas radiating from the central Asiatic land mass: 1. the Americas, 2. Europe and Africa and 3. the "drowned peninsula" of islands which terminate in Australia.

ACP Allotment Of $500 Transferred To The County SCS

By Oliver C. Alcock
(Soil Conservation Service)
The Caldwell County Production and Marketing Administration committee and the local Soil Conservation Service representative have arranged for the transfer of $500 of the county's ACP allotment to the SCS.

These funds will be used for technical assistance to landowners in the layout and establishment of permanent type soil conservation measures.

The practices which farmers expect to establish during the year have been indicated in their agricultural conservation plans at the PMA office.

BUILD FARM POND
Claude Jones and son, Lofton Jones, plan to drain a low area in one of the fields by opening a sink. This area can then be developed for pasture.

Also, Roy Francis, Jr., of the Liberty community and Harry Joiner, Sr., whose farm is in the Otter Pond community, have made provision for livestock water by constructing new ponds on their farms.

ENTERS ESSAY CONTEST
Mrs. Eleanor Powell, senior at the Fredonia High School, has entered the National Soil Conservation contest, sponsored by the National Grange and the American Plant Food Council, Inc. "Conservation Farming For Abundant Living" was the subject of the essay contest.

Mrs. Powell was named second place winner in the Caldwell County Soil Conservation Essay contest this year.

ATTEND MEET
Maurice Humphrey and I attended a meeting of the Soil Conservation Service personnel at Mayfield, Kentucky, this week. Those present were from the 13 soil conservation districts in the western end of the state.

The purpose of the meeting was to study land use and water disposal problems of farm land.

Farmers Realize Value Of Timber

That Green county farmers are realizing the economic value of their forests is seen in the reports made by Wilson J. Mitchell, county assistant in forestry with the University of Kentucky.

Twenty farmers toured the forest areas of the J. H. Howell farm where 195,000 board feet were marked in 954 hardwood trees and 9,800 board feet in 298 red cedar trees. Some of the higher grade material will be sold for veneer. Other timber will be used for repair and improvement of buildings on the farm.

Mr. Mitchell notes that tree planting has been a major activity this spring, the county having bought a mechanical tree planter in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Service.

In the Greensburg schools, 55 4-H club boys signed up for the forestry project. Twenty-one of them assisted farmers in planting trees in March. They will also plant an additional 1,000 locust trees in their 4-H club forest.

Experiments indicate that a hive of bees can gain as much as 40 pounds in a day through storage of honey and pollen and growth of the bees in the hive.

Retail sales are down considerably, according to comments heard locally and information from the state.

There are several reasons for this situation which some people, particularly non-farmers might not realize. The principle reason for slow sales in rural communities is that some people, particularly non-farmers might not realize. Farm income in 1950 was 69 cents per hour for labor, five per cent for investment and nothing for management. Manufacturing workers received $1.46 per hour, building contractors got $2.03 and retail workers got $1.17 per hour, according to national figures.

In 1950 farmers made up 17 per cent of the population, but their net income was only 6 per cent of the total national income. The outlook for 1952 shows an even worse picture for farm net income.

Farmers are practically the only group left in the great American free enterprise system who take their goods to market, under their arm, so to speak, and say "What you give me." All other groups put a price tag on the things they sell.

In many cases there is very little relationship between the prices consumers pay and prices farmers receive. In some cases the farmer's share of the consumer dollar is less than 10 cents. Throughout the years the farmer's share of all dollars spent for farmer-grown products has been less than 50 cents.

The farmer's share of a $3.85 cotton shirt is less than 30 cents. The farmer's share of an 18 cent loaf of bread is three cents.

BLACKLEG REPORTED
Reports are that cattle are being lost from blackleg in the county now. There is no reason for blackleg losses if farmers will follow a rigid vaccination program. All cattle under two years of age should be vaccinated as a prevention. The vaccination is no good as a cure.

Animals vaccinated under six months of age will have to be vaccinated the second time after they are more than six months old to have a life time immunity.

"BEHAVE YOURSELF", NOW SHOWING AT CAPITOL, SPARKLING COMEDY

Farley Granger and Shelley Winters Starred
In Hilarious Adventures of Two Newlyweds

Designed for laughing purposes only, "Behave Yourself!", starring Farley Granger and Shelley Winters and showing at the Capitol Theatre tonight and Friday, weaves its hilariously funny plot around the plight of a newlywed husband who gets into a series of adventures, the fault of a gangster's cherished dog.

The trouble (and fun) begins when he comes home one afternoon followed by a dog, which his spouse delightfully accepts as an anniversary present. But this particular dog has been trained by an underworld gang to act as a million-dollar theft, and his disappearance arouses the crooks to frantic action. Baffled by his adventures with mysterious corpses which he finds in all sorts of places, and by the suspicious nature of the police to whom he takes his troubles, the hero has a terrible time before the complications are all straightened out.

Both stars turn in hilarious performances and, with Margalo Gilmore as the mother-in-law, William Demarest as the hard-bitten cop, Lon Chaney as the

Open House Held At Kenlake Hotel

Dedication of the new $600,000 Kenlake Hotel at Kentucky Lake State Park was held Saturday, Henry Ward, commissioner of conservation, announced.

The program included an open-house all day Saturday, April 19, with a banquet that night. The featured speakers were Oscar Chapman, U.S. Secretary of Interior, Governor Lawrence W. Wetherby, and Senator Earle C. Clements. Other guests of honor included Senator Tom R. Underwood and Conrad Wirth, director of the National Park Service.

Mr. Chapman was invited to attend the dedication because the National Park Service, which operates the nation's parks and monuments, is in the Department of Interior. Mr. Wirth has long taken an interest in the development of state parks, and his son, Ted Wirth, was one of the landscape architects who worked on development of the grounds and other facilities at Kentucky Lake State Park.

Senator Clements was Kentucky governor when the contract for the hotel was awarded in 1950.

The hotel was opened March 15, and is now in operation, but the formal dedication was postponed until a later date to get everything in readiness. It is a structure of modern design, situated on a high bluff overlooking Kentucky Lake, 15 miles from Murray and 40 miles from Paducah and Hopkinsville. It has 58 rooms, a large lobby and lounge, dining room, recreation room, and a sun deck overlooking the lake. Fifteen vacation cottages also are operated in the park.

Kenlake was selected as the name for the hotel in a contest conducted by the Division of Parks. First to submit the name was Robert A. Blair, of Corbin. He will be among the guests at the dedication.

The Eighth Governor's Tour of State Parks, sponsored by the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, was concluded at the dedicatory banquet.

Tourist Requests Jump 25,000 In Past Year

The State of Kentucky received 86,802 requests for tourist information during the year ending April 15, according to figures compiled by the Division of Publicity.

The requests were received by the Divisions of Publicity and Parks and the Department of Highways. The number was far ahead of the figures for last year, when about 62,000 requests were received.

Marshall L. Peace, director of publicity, said that the volume of requests this year will probably show another big gain. About 1,100 a day are being received now and the number is expected to jump to 2,000 within the next few weeks.

Information seekers from all states and many foreign countries wrote to the State last year, Peace said. The state with the largest number of requests was Ohio, with 10,345. Illinois sent 9,099 and Indiana 5,070.

Foreign requests totaled 2,678. Each person making a request is sent material covering Kentucky's major tourist attractions and full information on State Parks. Special information is also given in a large number of cases.

180 HP CHRYSLER V-8 FIRST IN 3 CLASSES IN ECONOMY RUN!

Here is truly dramatic proof that Chrysler's great new FirePower 180 HP V-8 engine design sets an entirely new standard of efficiency among American passenger car engines!

In this annual economy test, rigidly supervised, and limited strictly to stock car entrants, cars competing are divided, by price and size, into 11 standard classes. The route, from Los Angeles to Sun Valley, covered 1,415 miles of every possible kind of driving. Average speed for all cars was just under 41 miles per hour.

And in 3 of the 11 classes, the Chrysler V-8 engine won best for gasoline mileage.

In Class "F", this magnificent new engine won first place for a Saratoga 6-passenger sedan (125 1/2-inch wheelbase, 4010 pounds). In Class "H", it won first honors for a Saratoga model 8-passenger sedan (139 1/2-inch wheelbase, 4510 pounds). And in the top price and size, Class "I", it was again first, in a Chrysler Crown Imperial Sedan (145 1/2-inch wheelbase, 5360 pounds).

To travel these substantial cars at this speed under these conditions gives additional proof, we believe, that here in the FirePower V-8 engine is the finest and most efficient engine ever put into an American passenger car!

WE INVITE YOU TO DRIVE THIS ENGINE, YOURSELF...

The same engine which has just scored these remarkable accomplishments is no farther from you than your own Chrysler Dealer. He will welcome the chance to let you take the wheel and feel for yourself what Chrysler has done...not only in engine performance, but in power steering, power brakes, new shock absorbers, passenger comfort...to deserve the title: "Finest Car America Has Yet Produced!"

CHRYSLER the finest car America has yet produced

Jack Stewart, manager of Ruby's Block Plant, is shown weighing the materials that go into the making of RU-CO-BLOX. These materials are delivered in railroad cars and hoisted into the weighing tower before being lowered to the smaller mixing units.

After the materials are weighed they are dumped into a mixer where water is added and then mixed. The complete block mix is then lifted by a small hoist car and dumped into the block making machine. The above picture shows one of 30 styles, types and sizes of RU-CO-BLOX being removed from the modern block making machine ready to be set on drying racks.

Before the finished RU-CO-BLOX are moved to the curing yard they are first set in a high temperature-regulated steam curing room. The RU-CO-BLOX stay here for 17 hours and then are taken by the truck-lift, in the above picture, to the curing yard where the famous RU-CO-BLOX are air-cured.

Another load of RU-CO-BLOX being loaded on Ruby Lumber Company's big truck from the massive curing yard going to Fort Campbell where over 250,000 are being used. Over 8 million RU-CO-BLOX have been sold, so they must be good. Ruby's will haul blocks to your job, or you can have your own truck come to the curing yard for them. At the left is Ruby Lumber Company's Block Plant and Curing Yard. The block plant is one of the most modern in Kentucky and produces over five thousand RU-CO-BLOX each day. The curing yard is of such massive size that 200 thousand can be cured at once.

Pleasant Grove

(By Miss Nola Wilson) Mother nature has dressed herself very beautifully, the woods with many shades of green, red-buds, dogwood and the beautiful green grass, but crops and gardens seem to be late.

Two of our life long citizens recently passed away. The burials at Rogers cemetery were well attended and the families have the sympathy of their friends.

Nello Storms, of Colorado, has been visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Thelma Burgess, of Detroit, Michigan, attended the funeral of her father, Mr. Oscar Storms.

Hugh McGowan is the owner of a new tractor and equipment.

Mrs. Lorenzo Hensley and little Ann Jewell had pneumonia but are better.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Rogers were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Rogers, Sunday.

The Claude Storms, Hugh McGowan and Wayne Rogers families attended a birthday dinner at Mr. Witherspoons, in Princeton, Sunday.

Mr. Ovid Hart is a patient in a Nashville Hospital for an examination.

Mrs. Ollie Lovelace, of Dawson Springs, visited Mrs. Amanda Baker recently.

Several from here attended the funeral of Mrs. Will Fuller at Hawkins, Tuesday.
